

Your personalised Geograph Calendar for 2022

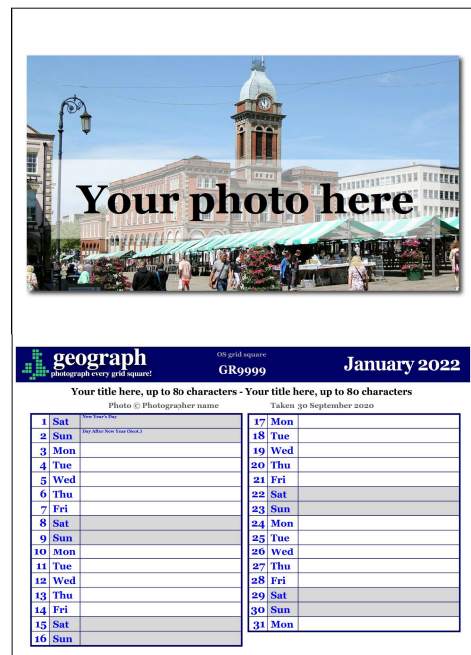

Many members will have used one of the commercial firms which allow them to create calendars featuring their own photographs. This year Geograph is offering members the same opportunity, featuring pictures that they have submitted to Geograph.

The calendar will be priced very competitively with the commercial offers, with the bonus that a significant proportion of the price will go to swell Geograph's coffers. We hope that as many members as possible will take advantage of this offer.

The calendar will be A3 hanging format, with a display for each month consisting of an A4 landscape photo page and an A4 landscape calendar page with ample space to write in your appointments on a day-by-day basis. There will be a separate photograph for each month, presented in a similar way to the normal Geograph photo page. (See right).

We are fortunate that one of our members has had contact in the past with a local print firm that has a calendar speciality. Further discussions with the printer mean that we can benefit from being able to place a single bulk order even though each member's order may only be for a small number, and each member will be providing their own set of pictures. The bulk order does not depend on any minimum quantity of calendars, which means that there is no financial risk to Geograph, but there will be a minimum order requirement of two identical calendars for each individual order received.

Geograph is grateful to the same member for making the initial proposal, including producing the layout design, and for volunteering to do the setting out of the individual calendars, using a professional desk-top publishing program. Thanks must also go to our technical expert, who spent significant time streamlining the process

Details of how to order your Geograph Calendar 2022 will be posted on the website shortly.
